Claude Isn't a Chatbot. It's a Business Strategist.

Stop asking Claude to write. Start asking it to think.

01

What Most People Do

"Write me a marketing plan."

"Give me 10 social media ideas."

"Draft an email."

The output? Generic. Forgettable. Sounds like everyone else's AI. Because you're using it like a search engine, not a strategist.

02

Ask It to Think, Not Write

Give Claude your real numbers. Your actual constraints. Your specific goals.

Then ask it to pressure-test your strategy before you spend a dollar. Challenge your assumptions. Find the gaps in your plan. That's where the real value is.

03

Configure It Once

Your business model. Your audience. Your voice. Your standards.

Claude remembers everything across conversations. Every session builds on the last. It gets smarter about YOUR business the more you use it.

04

Use It for Decisions

"Should I launch this offer at $297 or $497?" with your actual revenue data is worth more than 100 generic prompts.

The gap between 'I use AI' and 'AI drives my business decisions' isn't technical skill. It's how you set up the relationship.
